next issue. For several years we have had no observance or celebration of that nationaltholiday and anniversary, the Fourth of July. Undoubtedly various good and sufficient reasons have existed for this, but after all it seems almost a pity that out observance, but one in which the programme shall be full and complete one commencing with the National salute at sunrise, including the procession at 10 o'clock-in which the veterans and the orator have a "place in carriages'-and ending with a display of fire-works in the evening-in short, a ton Market Characters" with numerous gennine old-fashioned day of noise and patriotic manifestations? If taken hold of now, there is ample time to perfect all arrangements and make the matter so far a success as to revive recollections that would be doubly appropriate in NEWS OF THE WEEK. view of the approaching elections and which would at least have the merit of breaking down, for one day if for no longer, the walls of indifference that surround too great a proportion of our Literarina.

The Aldine for June is more thoroughly national in its character than any of our other magazines. It contains three full page engravings that are peculiarly american in their subjects and treatment. They are all of forest scenery, though each different in its spirit from the others: while Moran has selected the" forest primeviel" in all its wildness and grandeur under the title of "Kwasind, the the Strong Man," Nelig has selected a scene from the old colonial day's and, has drawn for us three characters that Campbell has written of in his "Gertrude of Wyoming," Gertrude and Albert who are represented as roaming through the sunny woods clad in fanciful Indian garb under the artists skillful handling form-if we may be allowed the term—a penciled poem, rather than a picture. Hows has chosen a scene among the pines of the Racquette and has treated it in a very delicate and effective manner. Besides these three tions, all good-the best we think is poem, designed by Davis. In its liter-ary contents this number is as able as the art department. January Searle contributes an interesting paper of a high degree of excellence on Charlotte Bronte's Brother and Father." other articles are, On an Island," a simple and pathetic story, by Caroline Cheesebro'; An III Wind,"a graceful sketch, by Leslie Malbone;" The fate of the Has-Leslie Malbone;" The late of the Has-sans." a matter-of-fact ghost story, by Clara Guernsey; and "Fancie's Fare-well," an imaginative fantasy by Lolly Dink's Mother. Dr. T. M, Coan gives ns "A Glimpse at Ireland," W. W. Bally contributes a pleasant paper on "Marsh and Pond Flowers," and Erastus South gossips about "An Art Musee in America." The poetry of The Aldine puts to shame the ambitious verse of the period, it is so fresh, and characteristic.
"My Neighbor Over the Way," by George W. Sears, is the most striking George W. Sears, is the most striking poem of the kind that we have read for years; and "Out in the Woods," by Mary E. Bradley, is in her happiest vein. There are editorials, on "The Noble Sav-"The Heart of Koseiusko," "Love The Kingfisher." Alto

Perhaps, however, the able and scholarly editorials make ample compensation for this deficiency in short essays, stories and criticisms. The Anti-Secrecy Convention met at 8 o'clock Wednesday forenoon, in Ober-lin, and spent two hours in business matters, after which, according to pre-vious appointment, the meeting adjourned and resolved itself into a mass convention of persons opposed to secret societies, for the purpose of considering the advisability of taking National political action. Speeches were limited to five minutes, and Judge Parish of Sandusky, was called to the chair. Mr. Pomeroy, of Syracuse, New York, pre-sented a petition from the farmers of Ontario county, desiring that no Presi dential nomination should be made. Fol lowing this was a spirited discussion on the question of national political action. The convention took a recess until l o'clock P. M., when the discussion will be resumed. The troops sent by Governor Baldwin to repress disorder at the copper mines of Lake Superior arrived at Houghton, but most of the men have returned to work, except at the Calumet and Hecla mines, The latter have threatened to stop work at the other mines, but the presence of the military will probably prevent any disturbance. The President of the Calumet and Hecla mines is expected to arrive, when terms will be made with the strikers and work be resumed. No more trouble is apprehended.

those upon whom any great persona calamity has fallen; who are stricken say, by fatal disease, there are a lso-dim and unacknowledged and impotent it tain wild heasts to fall upon and rend their sick and crippled. Our friend is well and prosperous—we shudder at the fancy of any great trouble falling upon him; it comes, and, though our hearts go out in loving helpfulness, there is just a little cloud over that sympathy—partly due to our classing him with others in like manner afflicted. The individual hardship seems to be trifle less because—well, it may be be cause there are statistics of misfortune; — just about so many people will become consumptive, just about so many people will lose their limbs by railroad accidents, just about so many people must die this year. O, that last and most pitiful accident Have you not sometimes thought of yourself lying there "cold and quiet?" have you not pictured the rounful sobbing mourners; the weeping proces ion bearing you to the grave?

seemed almost worth the perilous pass-ing for the sake of such an agony of de votion. But, my friend, sincere as would be the grief, not a single human SUPERIOR ST., Simplest & Most Complete sonl could send with you the intimate intense, all-embracing and constant sympathy for which you yearn. Where are We Now?

Where are we now? I'd really like to know, As through the world we helter skelter go, On life's troubled waters, a curious throng, Where some are sailing right and some go wrong. In business or in sport we go it blind, Nothing seems to agitate our mind; Through unknown waters, reckless do we plough. Til we're wreck'd and then—where are we now?

Where are we now? the politician asks, For everything with him is lovely—while it lasts; He's one of those who understands the ropes, He's almost reached ambition's brightest hopes; Of fraud and perjury perhaps he's king, Perhaps a shining member of the Ring; The crash must come, he to the storm must bow, Bewildered then he cries, Where are we now? STATE STREET, PAINESVILLE, O. Where are we now? our ministers inquire,
While preaching endless death and lakes of fire
The road to take (in politics) they teach—
I wonder If they practice what they preach?
In theology profound they loudly roar,
But leave us darker minded than before,
We would do right, but who is to teil us how,
We only want to know, Where are we now?
